DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 1, 2, 4-17, 19, 20, and 22-24 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Berger et al (US 2004/0015079) in view of Poland et al (US 6,537,219). Berger et al discloses a portable ultrasound probe device including releasable connector connected to the transducer and connectable with an ultrasound imaging system (Fig 11), analog to digital converter between the transducer and connector separate from the ultrasound system and imaging system housing (fig 3-5), coaxial cable use (including multi-wire and wireless protocols for each of the element/housing interactions, abs, 0010-0020, 0130-0145, 0459), a connector housing for covering at least part of the connector and analog-to-digital converter. Additionally, Berger et al discloses coaxial cable use between the transducer and A/D converter housing (Fig 11, 0220, length longer than the probe housing and connected from the probe housing and A/D housing). The transducer is multi-dimensional, beamforming is used to combine data (processor, Fig 1, 11), multiplexing (controlled switches), and demuxing elements are connected to pass along output signals (0187, 0112, Fig 3-5, including serial data).

Berger et al disclose all that is listed above but fail to disclose multiple mux-es connected to the array for multiplexing signals to multiple A/D converters. Attention is directed to the prior art reference of Poland et al which discloses such a device (Fig 1 and Col 3 Line 1-65). The device of Poland et al includes multiple analog-to-digital converters connected from the transducer elements through multiplexer elements to the ADCs (Fig1). It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time for the invention that multiple analog to digital converters (and mux-es) for image detection and summation of image data (and delays) into a digital output (Col 3 Line 25-45).

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to the claims have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
